Short title and commencement

48. (1) This is the Mine Health and Safety Amendment Act, 1997, and comes into operation on a date fixed by the President by proclamation in the Gazette.

(2) Section 46 must be regarded as having come into operation on 15 January 1997.

MEMORANDUM ON THE OBJECTS OF THE MINE HEALTH AND SAFETY AMENDMENT BILL

The provisions of section 86(2) of the Mine Health and Safety Act, 1996 (Act No. 29 of 1996) ("the Act"), caused great concern and unhappiness amongst the mining fraternity and seriously threatened the co-operation to promote health and safety between the employer and employees in the mining industry, the promotion of which was the primary object of Government in adopting the Act. The implementation of section 86(2) and (3) was therefore postponed for a period of 12 months during which employers and employees had to come to an agreement on an alternative to the provisions of section 86(2), and which had to be acceptable to the tripartite stakeholders.

Representatives of employers and employees concluded an agreement to replace section 86(2) with a system of administrative fines similar to systems in operation in countries like British Columbia and the United States of America, but specifically adjusted to provide for mining attributes and circumstances peculiar to South Africa.

Certain other minor adjustments are also proposed to promote the administration of the Act and to make it consistent with other Acts which regulate relations between employers and employees.

The Bill is the result of proposals by the Mining Regulations Advisory Committee established by the Act and was accepted by the tripartite Mine Health and Safety Council which is also established by the Act.

The main objects of the Bill are—

- (a) to provide for the implementation of a system of administrative fines to elevate the promotion and protection of the health and safety of all persons working at a mine and the repeal of sections 86(2) and (3) which becomes redundant if such a system is implemented;
- (b) to bring the Act into line with other labour related Acts regarding employers and to provide for responsibilities regarding health and safety at mines for employers who are not the owner of a mine;
- (c) to transfer some of the responsibilities of managers to employers;
- (d) to provide for the liability of employers who are body corporate;
- (e) to restrict the obligation on employers to arrange for exit medical examinations of employees whose employment at a mine are terminated to those employees who were subject to medical surveillance; and
- (f) to provide that any regulation made or deemed to be made under the Minerals Act, 1991 (Act No. 50 of 1991), which relate to health and safety issues that can be regulated under the Act may be amended in terms of the Act and that any regulation so amended remains in force until it is repealed under the Act.

In the opinion of the Department and the State Law Advisers this Bill must be dealt with in terms of section 75 of the Constitution.
