FOREWORD

I am pleased to present the first Schools Subject Report which marks the 5th year of the implementation of the National Senior Certificate. This Schools Subject Report presents the performance of each school in the country in terms of their performance in key subjects. Therefore to obtain a more holistic interpretation of learner performance in the 2012 NSC examinations, this report must be read in conjunction with the School Performance Report and the Diagnostic Report on Learner Performance. The introduction of this report is a confirmation of the commitment by the Department to provide districts, subject advisors and curriculum implementers with the vital information that will arm them to tackle the issue of under-performance at school level.

Informed by the diagnostic analysis of the 2011 NSC results, all PEDs developed intervention and support plans which targeted underperforming schools, as well as the specific areas of weakness in targeted subjects. Provinces continued to build on their already entrenched intervention strategies by extending the emphasis to four key areas of concern: teacher support, the development of resources, supplementary tuition and syllabus coverage.

Provinces, districts and schools have made a commendable effort to coordinate and implement a variety of systemic interventions to ensure adequate teacher preparedness and learner readiness for the 2012 NSC examination. The introduction of the Annual National Assessment has ensured that we take cognizance of learner performance across the entire education system. There will now be a building from the bottom up in terms of diagnosis and improvement of teaching and learning.

This Subject Performance Report will help all involved in learner improvement to foreground subject performance in their efforts to drive teaching and learning to the next level. Progress made in the following subjects: Mathematics, Physical Sciences, Accounting, Economics, Geography, History and English First Additional Language, is welcomed as a positive return on the investment made on teachers and learners in 2012. In our planning for 2013, we will respond appropriately to the emergent issues in subjects where there was marginal or no improvement.

This report completes the feedback loop to all key role players responsible for ensuring the successful implementation of the NSC.

I trust that this Report will add to our intervention programme and ensure a more consolidated approach to subject improvement in 2013.

1. INTRODUCTION

The Department of Basic Education has embarked on a major drive to ensure that effective feedback, emanating from the NSC examinations, takes place. This therefore requires all available data that will be useful for improvement of learner performance at the school level to be at the disposal of the relevant officials involved in this improvement process. In 2011 for the first time, the DBE published the overall results of each school in the country. This allowed support officials to evaluate the overall performance of the school and to establish trends in the performance of the specific school over a three year period. However, this report does not inform the support officials of individual subject performance, which is critical in determining, where the area of weakness or strength lies. Hence this report that presents the performance per subject is the logical follow up from an overall School Performance Report.

In addition in 2011, to help improve the performance of all schools in the country, the Department of Basic Education conducted an in-depth diagnostic analysis of subject performance in selected subjects. This report targeted core subjects which are taken by the majority of the candidates in the country. For each question paper of each subject, a per question analysis was conducted and the reasons for poor performance in each of these questions was probed and remedial measures were suggested. This report served as a useful tool to drive learner improvement programmes in 2012.

This subject performance report, will at a glance provide districts with an indication of the subject performance across districts. In cases where good performance is observed a systematic enquiry could be conducted to ascertain the reasons for the good performance. The impact of the intervention programs in each of the schools must be evaluated to ensure that the best practices are extended to other schools in the district.

It also needs to be noted that although subject knowledge is important, it is not the only factor that determines a good teacher, subject head or subject advisor. Becoming a good teacher requires certain personal qualities such as perseverance, resilience, initiative and willingness to learn from experience, observations and advice. The teacher reading this report should therefore seek to emulate good results achieved by fellow teachers in the district. It takes a sense of humility to consult successful teachers, observe experienced and accomplished teachers teaching their lessons, engage in conversations with peers, attend seminars, lectures and workshop on content training and teaching strategies and indulge in continuous reading of relevant material containing information about the subject knowledge.

2. SCOPE OF THE SUBJECT PERFORMANCE REPORT

This report will cover the following subjects: Mathematics, Physical Sciences, Life Sciences, Accounting, History, Geography, Economics, Business Studies, English First Additional Language and Mathematical Literacy.

The data that will be provided is only for the current year and will include the number of learners that wrote the subject at the school and the percentage that passed, using the 30% as the level of achievement.

3. UTILISATION OF THE SUBJECT PERFORMANCE REPORT

The report will be used by subject advisors, national curriculum specialists and district officials as essential information to assist with their intervention programmes. It is necessary for each district official to have all the relevant information about the profile of each school in the district in order to embark on a meaningful intervention.

This report provides details on the number of learners that wrote the examination in a particular subject and the percentage of learners that obtained a mark above 30%, which is the current minimum mark to pass a subject.

The inclusion of the number of learners in Grade 12 will make district officials to evaluate the number of learners in Grade 12 against the number of learners in Grade 11 so as to ascertain whether the school's success is as a result of the gate keeping strategy. Once schools that adopt gate keeping strategy have been exposed they will resort to honest intervention strategy that will ensure that more learners progress to Grade 12. This is an appropriate tool to monitor the school population in each classroom.

The subject report will also be used to compare performance across subjects at a school and at a district or cluster. Schools that perform well in one subject should also perform at an equivalent level in other subjects, particularly related subjects e.g. Mathematics and Physical Sciences. Where there is a lack of correlation between related subjects, further investigations must be carried out by subject advisors to establish the reason for this non-alignment of performance. This may quite often point to competency levels of teachers or differences in the cohort of learners. This report is therefore of critical importance in that it to a large extent reflects on the performance of each teacher, where one teacher teaches the subject at the school. These teachers are usually masked by the overall school performance results and they could escape from the accountability chain. With the introduction of the subject Performance Report the accountability is re-instated to the teacher.
