23. This Act is called the Judicial Matters Amendment Act, 2015, and sections 5, 13, 14, 15, 17, 18 and 19 come into operation on a date fixed by the President by proclamation in the Gazette.

MEMORANDUM ON THE OBJECTS OF THE JUDICIAL MATTERS AMENDMENT BILL, 2015

1. BACKGROUND

The amendments contained in the Judicial Matters Amendment Bill, 2015 (Bill) address practical challenges which have been identified in the application of the Acts being amended. They are mainly technical in nature.

2. OBJECTS OF BILL

The main object of the Bill is to amend the following pieces of legislation:

- Magistrates' Courts Act, 1944 (Act No. 32 of 1944) — to further regulate the appointment of judicial officers;
- Criminal Procedure Act, 1955 (Act No. 56 of 1955) — to repeal an obsolete provision;
- Prescribed Rate of Interest Act, 1975 (Act No. 55 of 1975) — to further regulate the calculation of interest on a debt;
- Magistrates Act, 1993 (Act No. 90 of 1993) — to regulate the pension benefits of a magistrate when he or she assumes office as a judge;
- Judicial Service Commission Act, 1994 (Act No. 9 of 1994) — to replace the functionary accountable for the receipt and payment of money in respect of the administration and functioning of the Judicial Service Commission;
- Special Investigating Units and Special Tribunals Act, 1996 (Act No. 74 of 1996) — to provide for the reporting responsibility by the head thereof;
- Promotion of Access to Information Act, 2000 (Act No. 2 of 2000) — to further regulate the training of designated presiding officers (magistrates) for purposes of court proceedings arising out of the application of the said Act;
- Promotion of Administrative Justice Act, 2000 (Act No. 3 of 2000) — to further regulate the training of designated presiding officers (magistrates) for purposes of court proceedings arising out of the application of the said Act;
- Promotion of Equality and Prevention of Unfair Discrimination Act, 2000 (Act No. 4 of 2000) — to further regulate the training of designated presiding officers (judges and magistrates) for purposes of court proceedings arising out of the application of the said Act;
- Judges' Remuneration and Conditions of Employment Act, 2001 (Act No. 47 of 2001) — to substitute references to the Director-General: Justice and Constitutional Development with references to the Secretary-General of the Office of the Chief Justice;
- Criminal Law (Sexual Offences and Related Matters) Amendment Act, 2007 (Act No. 32 of 2007) — to further regulate the reporting to Parliament by roleplaying departments and other institutions in respect of the implementation of that Act and their reports on training;
- South African Judicial Education Institute Act, 2008 (Act No. 14 of 2008) — to replace the functionary accountable for the receipt and payment of money in respect of the administration and functioning of the South African Judicial Education Institute;
- Child Justice Act, 2008 (Act No. 75 of 2008) — to further regulate the reporting to Parliament by roleplaying departments and other institutions in respect of the implementation of that Act and to further regulate the expunge-ment of records of certain convictions and diversion orders in respect of children; and

- Prevention and Combating of Trafficking in Persons Act, 2013 (Act No. 7 of 2013) — to further regulate protective measures for foreign victims of trafficking in persons, and to further regulate matters in respect of which regulations can be made.

3. CLAUSE-BY-CLAUSE ANALYSIS

3.1 Clause 1

Currently, section 9(5) of the Magistrates' Courts Act, 1944, provides for the appointment of acting magistrates for a period not exceeding three months. The proposed amendment in clause 1 of the Bill seeks to extend the period of appointment to 12 months. The proposed amendment is intended to address practical challenges currently being experienced by the Magistrates Commission in filling a vacant post of a magistrate within three months.

3.2 Clause 2

Clause 2 of the Bill seeks to repeal section 384 of the Criminal Procedure Act, 1995, which has become obsolete. Section 384 deals with binding over of persons to keep the peace. It has fallen into disuse in many parts of the Republic and has largely been superseded by the provisions of the Protection from Harassment Act, 2011 and the Promotion of Equality and Prevention of Unfair Discrimination Act, 2000.

3.3 Clause 3

Clause 3 of the Bill seeks to substitute section 1 of the Prescribed Rate of Interest Act, 1975. Currently section 1 provides that if a debt bears interest and the rate at which the interest is to be calculated is not governed by any other law or by an agreement or a trade custom or in any other manner, such interest shall be calculated at the rate prescribed by the Minister of Justice, after consultation with the Minister of Finance. The proposed amendment seeks to ensure that there is uniformity and that the prescribed rate reflects prevailing market conditions by providing that the rate of interest is in line with the repo rate determined by the South African Reserve Bank, from time to time.

3.4 Clause 4

3.4.1 Clause 4 of the Bill seeks to amend section 13 of the Magistrates Act, 1993, in order to provide for the situation when a magistrate vacates his or her office on account of his or her appointment as a judge.

3.4.2 Currently, when a magistrate is appointed as a judge, section 13(5)(c)(ii) of the Magistrates Act is applied, which provides that if a magistrate is allowed to vacate his or her office, he or she shall be deemed to have been retired in accordance with section 16(4) of the Public Service Act, 1994. That being the case, the magistrate will be entitled to pension benefits as if he or she had retired. This means that the State must make a contribution to the pension fund. It should also be borne in mind that, in practice, the former magistrate, having been appointed as a judge, will receive a judge's salary for life in terms of the Judges' Remuneration and Conditions of Employment Act, 2001. The proposed amendments are intended to prevent unintended and undue financial implications that may be imposed on the State in the event of a magistrate, who has not reached the age of retirement as provided for in section 19 of the Government Employees Pension Law, 1996, being appointed to the office of a judge.

3.4.3 In terms of the proposed new provision the magistrate will have one of two choices: The first option is to request the Government Employees Pension Fund (GEPF) to transfer the full actuarial interest from the GEPF to a designated preservation fund. The effect of this is that the monies will be paid to the preservation fund with the same reduced taxable implications to which the magistrate would have been entitled if he or she retired in the normal manner. The monies must remain in the designated preservation fund until the former magistrate attains the age of 55 years, whereafter he or she can buy a monthly pension (take out an annuity) with the further option of withdrawing one third of the accrued amount in cash. The second option is to request the GEPF to pay the full actuarial interest to the former magistrate and not to transfer the monies to a preservation fund. The negative implication of this option is that no reduced tax benefit will be applicable and the lump sum will be taxed, based on the former magistrate's marginal tax rate. (Based on provisional indications, the Government will soon implement new legislation to do away with the second option to ensure that all monies are paid into a preservation fund until a specific future age of the beneficiary.)

3.5 Clause 5

Clause 5 of the Bill seeks to amend section 36 of the Judicial Service Commission Act, 1994, by making the Secretary-General of the Office of the Chief Justice the accounting officer for purposes of the Judicial Service Commission, in the place of the Director-General: Justice and Constitutional Development.

3.6 Clause 6

3.6.1 Clause 6 of the Bill amends the Special Investigating Units and Special Tribunals Act, 1996, by inserting a new section 4A in the Act. In practice, experience has shown that the current reporting duties of the Special Investigating Unit (the SIU) are not sufficient.

3.6.2 The new section 4A is intended to require the head of the SIU to report to the President and the Cabinet member responsible for the administration of justice on a quarterly basis on progress made in its investigations and matters brought before the Special Tribunal concerned or any court of law. In addition, the proposed new section gives discretion to the head of the SIU, whenever requested by certain institutions, persons or functionaries, to report on an investigation and matters brought before the Special Tribunal concerned or before any court of law. A discretion is deemed necessary as it may, in certain cases or circumstances, not be appropriate or advisable to report on an investigation or matter.

3.7 Clauses 7 and 8

3.7.1 Clause 7 amends the definition of court in section 1 of the Promotion of Access to Information Act, 2000 (PAIA) in order to extend the ambit of the Act to include courts of regional divisions (regional courts) so that they can also deal with matters arising from its application. Regional courts have, since the enactment of PAIA, obtained jurisdiction to deal with civil matters, by virtue of the Jurisdiction of Regional Courts Amendment Act, 2008 (Act 31 of 2008). Other reasons to extend the application of the Act to include regional courts are the following:

- (a) Many magistrates who received training in PAIA have since been appointed in the regional courts;
- (b) the workload of the High Court will be reduced if the jurisdiction of PAIA is extended to the regional courts; and

- (c) the extension of the application of PAIA to regional courts will enhance access to justice and will be less costly than litigation in the High Court.

3.7.2 Clause 8 of the Bill amends section 91A of the Promotion of Access to Information Act, 2000, in order to provide—

- (a) for the Magistrates Commission, instead of the Director-General: Justice and Constitutional Development, to compile a list of magistrates who have been designated as presiding officers for purposes of the Act and who have completed a training course; and
- (b) for the development and implementation of training courses for presiding officers by the South African Judicial Education Institute, instead of the Chief Justice. It also contains consequential amendments arising from clause 7.

3.7.3 At present the responsibilities referred to in paragraph (a) above reside with the Director-General: Justice and Constitutional Development and the responsibilities referred to in paragraph (b) above reside with the Chief Justice, the Judicial Service Commission and the Magistrates Commission. The proposed amendments are intended to ensure that the more appropriate structure within the judiciary itself takes responsibility for the designation of presiding officers to deal with matters arising out of the application of this Act and that the South African Judicial Education Institute takes responsibility for the training of judicial officers.

3.8 Clauses 9 and 10

Clauses 9 and 10 of the Bill amend sections 1 and 9A of the Promotion of Administrative Justice Act, 2000, in the same manner as clauses 7 and 8 and for the same reasons, in respect of the PAIA.

3.9 Clauses 11 and 12

Clauses 11 and 12 of the Bill amend sections 16 and 31 of the Promotion of Equality and the Prevention of Unfair Discrimination Act, 2000, in the same manner as clauses 7 and 8 and for the same reasons.

3.10 Clauses 13 and 14

Clauses 13 and 14 of the Bill seek to amend the Judges' Remuneration and Conditions of Employment Act, 2001, by making the Secretary-General of the Office of the Chief Justice responsible for the general administration of this Act in the place of the Director-General: Justice and Constitutional Development.

3.11 Clauses 15 and 16

3.11.1 Clause 15 of the Bill amends the Criminal Law (Sexual Offences and Related Matters) Amendment Act, 2007, to further regulate the reporting to Parliament by the roleplaying Departments and institutions, instead of the Minister, in respect of the implementation of this Act.

3.11.2 Clause 15 requires the individual accounting officers, namely the Directors-General: Justice and Correctional Services, Social Development and Health, the National Commissioner of the South African Police Service (SAPS), the National Commissioner of Correctional Services and the National Director of Public Prosecutions (NPA), each to include in the annual reports of their respective Departments or institutions to Parliament as referred to in section 40 of the Public Finance Management Act, 1999 (Act No. 1 of 1999), a separate part, setting out that Department's or institution's activities and role on the implementation of the Criminal Law (Sexual Offences and Related Matters) Amendment Act, 2007.

3.11.3 At present, in terms of the Criminal Law (Sexual Offences and Related Matters) Amendment Act, 2007, the Minister of Justice and Correctional Services (in practice his or her Director-General: Justice and Constitutional Development) is responsible for collating the reports of all the roleplaying Departments and institutions. The amendment is sought to facilitate the submission of the reports by the more appropriate various roleplaying Departments or institutions in this regard.

3.11.4 Section 66 of the Criminal Law (Sexual Offences and Related Matters) Amendment Act, 2007, places an obligation on the Department of Health, the NPA and SAPS to develop training manuals. In terms of section 66(5)(b) of the Criminal Law (Sexual Offences and Related Matters) Amendment Act, 2007, the relevant Cabinet members must every 12 months table a report in Parliament relating to the implementation of the training courses. In practice the annual reports also include reports on training. Therefore, to avoid an unproductive duplication of reporting, clause 16 seeks to delete section 66(5)(b) and add a new section 65(4) that stipulates that the annual report must contain a report on the implementation of training courses.

3.12 Clauses 17 and 18

Clauses 17 and 18 of the Bill seek to amend the South African Judicial Education Institute Act, 2008, by making the Office of the Chief Justice the Department responsible for the South African Judicial Education Institute, and also making Secretary-General of the Office of the Chief Justice the accounting officer of the South African Judicial Education Institute, in the place of the Director-General: Justice and Constitutional Development.

3.13 Clause 19

3.13.1 Clause 19 of the Bill amends section 96 of the Child Justice Act, 2008, to further regulate the reporting to Parliament by the various roleplaying Departments and institutions regarding the implementation of the said Act.

3.13.2 Clause 19 requires the individual accounting officers, namely the Directors-General: Justice and Correctional Services, Social Development and Health, the National Commissioner of the South African Police (SAPS), the National Commissioner of Correctional Services and the National Director of Public Prosecutions (NPA) each to include in the annual reports of their respective Departments or institutions to Parliament as referred to in section 40 of the Public Finance Management Act, 1999 (Act No. 1 of 1999), a separate part, setting out that Department's or institution's activities and role on the implementation of the Child Justice Act, 2008.

3.13.3 At present, in terms of the Child Justice Act, 2008, the Minister of Justice and Correctional Services (in practice his or her Director-General: Justice and Constitutional Development) is responsible for collating the reports of all the roleplaying Departments and institutions. The amendment is sought to facilitate the submission of the reports by the more appropriate various roleplaying Departments or institutions in this regard.

3.14 Clause 20

3.14.1 Clause 20 amends the transitional arrangements contained in section 98 of the Child Justice Act, 2008. The amendment is intended to make it clear that the provisions of section 87 of the Child Justice Act, 2008, dealing with the expungement of certain criminal records of children, apply retrospectively. The general rule is that statutes regulate future events and conduct and are construed as applying only on cases or facts that came into existence after they were passed. In other words, there is a presumption against retrospectivity. If a statute or provision thereof is to apply retrospectively, this intention must be expressed clearly in the statute or provision.

3.14.2 Section 87 of the Child Justice Act, 2008, is intended to allow children who have committed less serious offences to have their criminal records expunged if a period of five years, in the case of offences referred to in Schedule 1 to the Child Justice Act, 2008, or a period of ten years, in the cases of offences referred to in Schedule 2 to the Child Justice Act, 2008, has elapsed and the child has not been convicted of a similar or more serious offence during that period. The intention of this provision is to give persons who were children when they committed offences of a less serious nature, an opportunity to wipe the slate clean and rid themselves of the negative implications of having a criminal record.

3.14.3 It has been argued that this provision only applies prospectively because there is no clear indication that it applies retrospectively. This means section 87 of the Child Justice Act, 2008, can only be used for the expungement of criminal convictions and records of children whose convictions occurred after 1 April 2010, that is the date when the Child Justice Act, 2008, came into operation. This, in turn, means that children who committed offences before that date do not qualify to have their records expunged in terms of the Child Justice Act, 2008. This was not the intention of the Legislature and it is recommended that the Child Justice Act, 2008, be amended to broaden the ambit of the provision in question, in the best interests of children.

3.15 Clause 21

Clause 21 of the Bill amends section 15(1) of the Prevention and Combating of Trafficking in Persons Act, 2013, in order to make it clear that a visitor's visa only needs to be granted to a foreign victim of trafficking in persons if that victim is not in possession of a valid visa or if the visa is about to expire and also if such person is cooperating with the authorities in respect of trafficking in persons.

3.16 Clause 22

Clause 22 of the Bill amends section 43(2) of the Prevention and Combating of Trafficking in Persons Act, 2013, by adding a new provision that the Minister of Home Affairs must make regulations regarding the manner in which a visitor's visa may be extended or withdrawn. The new provision is aligned to, and enhances, section 16(1)(c) of the said Act, which stipulates that the Director-General: Home Affairs may extend or withdraw a visitor's visa if requested to do so by the National Commissioner of the SAPS or the National Director of Public Prosecutions.

6. PARLIAMENTARY PROCEDURE

- 6.1 The Constitution prescribes the procedure for the classification of Bills. Therefore a Bill must be correctly classified otherwise it will be constitutionally out of order.
- 6.2 The State Law Advisers have considered the Bill against the provisions of the Constitution relating to the tagging of Bills and against the functional areas listed in Schedule 4 (functional areas of concurrent national and provincial legislative competence) and Schedule 5 (functional areas of exclusive provincial legislative competence) to the Constitution.
- 6.3 The established test for the classification of a Bill is that any Bill whose provisions in substantial measure fall within a functional area listed in Schedule 4 to the Constitution must be classified in terms of that Schedule. The process is concerned with the question of how the Bill should be considered by the provinces and in the National Council of Provinces, and how a Bill must be considered by the provincial legislatures depends on whether it affects the provinces. The more it affects the interests, concerns and capacities of the provinces, the more say the provinces should have on its content.
- 6.4 Therefore the issue to be determined is whether the proposed amendments of the various Acts of Parliament, contained in the Bill, in substantial measure, fall within a functional area listed in schedule 4 to the Constitution.
- 6.5 The stated general purpose of the Bill is to address practical challenges which have been identified in the application of the various Acts that are sought to be amended. Each of the proposed amendments reflected have been carefully examined to establish whether, in substantial measure, they fall within any of the functional areas listed in Schedule 4 to the Constitution.
- 6.6 The State Law Advisers are of the view that the subject matter of the proposed amendments does not fall within any of the functional areas listed in Schedule 4 to the Constitution and it does not affect provinces whereby the procedure set out in section 76 of the Constitution would be applicable.
- 6.7 The State Law Advisers are therefore of the opinion that since this Bill does not deal with any of the matters listed in Schedule 4 of the Constitution, it must be dealt with in accordance with the procedure set out in section 75 of the Constitution.

- 6.8 The State Law Advisers are also of the opinion that it is not necessary to refer this Bill to the National House of Traditional Leaders in terms of section 18(1)(a) of the Traditional Leadership and Governance Framework Act, 2003 (Act No. 41 of 2003), since it does not contain provisions pertaining to customary law or customs of traditional communities.
