MEMORANDUM ON THE OBJECTS OF THE COMPENSATION FOR OCCUPATIONAL INJURIES AND DISEASES AMENDMENT
BILL, 1997

The main object of the Bill is to bring the administration of the Compensation for Occupational Injuries and Diseases Act, 1993 (Act No. 130 of 1993) ("the Act"), into line with that of the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1966 (Act No. 30 of 1966). In terms of the Act, the Compensation Commissioner is charged with the administration of the Act and the accountability for the compensation fund. The Bill seeks to transfer the decision making and accountability from the Compensation Commissioner to the Director-General of the Department of Labour. Such amendment will also bring the Compensation Commissioner and his staff under the control of the Director-General. The Compensation Commissioner does, however, still have the functions set out in the sections which deal with the receipt of documents and payments, and the keeping of records. It is also proposed that the Director-General be empowered to delegate his or her functions in terms of the Act to the Compensation Commissioner and the staff appointed in terms of the Act.

The Bill also seeks to achieve the following:

1. Although section 9 of the Act provides that certain benefits may be paid to assessors who sustain disablement as a result of an accident arising out of and in the course of the performance of their functions, there is at present no provision in the Act for the payment of medical expenses and benefits to dependants in the event of a fatal injury to assessors. The Bill seeks to amend section 9 of the Act in order to make such provision.
2. The Compensation Board plays an important role in the administration of the Act. However, the proper functioning of the Board depends on the attendance of meetings by members of the Board. There is no provision in the Act for the appointment of alternate members. The Bill seeks to make such provision.
3. The Act does not make provision for situations where a presiding officer or an assessor becomes unable to continue with a hearing in terms of the Act. The lack of such a provision causes problems in practice. The Bill seeks to make such provision.
4. Since the coming into operation of the Act, certain textual inconsistencies were identified. The Bill seeks to effect textual alterations where these inconsistencies were found and also to bring the Act into line with the Constitution.

The Department of Labour and the State Law Advisers are of the opinion that the Bill must be dealt with in terms of the procedure set out in section 75 of the Constitution.
