SUSTAINABLE FOREST MANAGEMENT

The purpose of this Chapter is to promote the sustainable management of forests.

Part 1

Management

10

Part 1 lists principles of sustainable forest management, which apply to all official decisions affecting forests, whether in terms of this Act or other laws. The Minister is given the power to— set criteria, indicators and standards for assessing and enforcing sustainable forest management; and*  create incentives to manage forests sustainably,*

on the advice of the Committee for Sustainable Forest Management.

Principles to guide decisions affecting forests

3. (1) The principles set out in subsection (3) must be considered and applied in a balanced way—

20

(a) in the exercise of any power or the performance of any duty in terms of this Act;

(b) in the development and implementation of government policies affecting forests;

(c) in the exercise of any power or the performance of any duty in terms of any other legislation where the exercise of that power or the performance of that duty will impact on a natural forest or woodland;

25

(d) in the issuing of a licence or other authorisation relating to the use of water for afforestation or forestry in terms of section 39(1) or 40(1) of the National Water Act, 1998; and

30

(e) by any person required in terms of any legislation to carry out an environmental impact assessment in respect of any activity which will or may have an effect on natural forests or woodlands.

(2) An organ of State applying these principles must—

(a) take into account the differences between natural forests, woodlands and plantations;

35

(b) recognise that conservation of biological diversity within plantations should be promoted in a way which is consistent with the primary economic purpose for which the plantation was established;

(c) only apply those principles which it considers relevant to the decision or action which is contemplated; and

40

(d) give such weight to each principle as it considers appropriate.

(3) The principles are that—

(a) natural forests must not be destroyed save in exceptional circumstances where, in the opinion of the Minister, a proposed new land use is preferable in terms of its economic, social or environmental benefits;

(b) a minimum area of each woodland type should be conserved; and

(c) forests must be developed and managed so as to—

(i) conserve biological diversity, ecosystems and habitats;

(ii) sustain the potential yield of their economic, social and environmental benefits;

50

- (iii) promote the fair distribution of their economic, social, health and environmental benefits;
 - (iv) promote their health and vitality;
 - (v) conserve natural resources, especially soil and water;
 - (vi) conserve heritage resources and promote aesthetic, cultural and spiritual values; and
 - (vii) advance persons or categories of persons disadvantaged by unfair discrimination.

- (a) the registered owner; or
 - (b) where the registered owner has transferred control of the forest management unit in question to another person or organ of State, whether by way of assignment, delegation, contract or otherwise, that person or organ of State.
- (2) The Minister may—
- (a) determine—
 - (i) criteria on the basis of which it can be determined whether or not forests are being managed sustainably;
 - (ii) indicators which may be used to measure the state of forest management; and
 - (iii) appropriate standards in relation to the indicators; and
 - (b) create or promote certification programmed and other incentives to encourage sustainable forest management,
- on the advice of the Committee for Sustainable Forest Management.
- (3) The Minister must—
- (a) publish the criteria, indicators and standards in the form of regulations made under section 53(2)(b);
 - (b) identify clearly where the breach of a standard maybe an offence.
- (4) The Minister may publish the criteria, indicators and standards in such other media as he or she considers appropriate.
- (5) Specific regional, economic, social and environmental conditions must be taken into account in determining criteria, indicators and standards.
- (6) Criteria and indicators may include, but are not limited to, those for determining—
- (a) the level of maintenance and development of—
 - (i) forest resources;
 - (ii) biological diversity in forests;
 - (iii) the health and vitality of forests;
 - (iv) the productive functions of forests;
 - (v) the protective and environmental functions of forests; and
 - (vi) the social functions of forests;
 - (b) the level of provision of socio-economic benefits; and
 - (c) the status and appropriateness of the policy and the legislative and institutional framework for forest management.
- (7) The criteria, indicators and standards determined under subsection (2)(a)—
- (a) may apply nationally, regionally or to specific forest management units;
 - (b) may identify the boundaries of the forest management unit or units to which they apply;
 - (c) may apply to all or to specific forest types;
 - (d) bind all owners of land on which there are forests in the area and of the type to which the standards apply;
 - (e) bind any other persons to whom they are expressly made applicable.
- (8) Where the breach of a particular standard may be an offence, a forest officer may inform an owner who is in breach of that standard by written notice of—

- (a) the nature of the breach;
 - (b) the steps which the owner must take to remedy the breach; and
 - (c) the period within which he or she must do so.
- (9) The period laid down in the notice may be extended by the Minister for good reason. 5

Part 2

Research, monitoring and reporting

Part 2 obliges the Minister to see that relevant research is done and to monitor the management of forests. The Minister must report to Parliament at least every three years on the results of the monitoring. 10

Promotion of research

5. (1) The Minister must carry out or commission research.
- (2) The research must promote the objectives of forest policy and conform with national policies and programmes relating to science and technology.

Duty to monitor forests and disseminate information 15

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM ON THE NATIONAL FORESTS BILL, 1998

INTRODUCTION

Forest Policy for South Africa has been set out in the White Paper on Sustainable Forest Development in South Africa, issued in March 1996. A strategy for implementing policy has been captured in the National Forestry Action Programme, issued in September 1997. The National Forestry Action Programme called for new forest legislation to be passed to replace existing legislation and allow for the implementation of policy.

Forest resources in South Africa include natural or indigenous forests, woodlands and plantations. All play an important role in our life and economy. The natural forest resources continue to be very important for millions of rural households. Through their environmental and biological diversity functions they also contribute to aesthetic, cultural, and economic life in a variety of ways. Plantation forest resources provide a resource base for major forest products industries and the major source of rural employment.

There are a number of features of the current situation in the forests sector which underlie the need for new legislation:

- * The benefits derived from all aspects of the forest sector mirror the discriminatory environment in which forestry has been practised in the past. This relates both to the enjoyment of forests for recreation and related purposes and reaping the rewards of the commercial plantation forestry sector and the timber products industry.
- * Forests have often been managed in a manner which is antagonistic and exclusive towards their surrounding communities.
- * Forests in the former homelands whose administration has been taken over by the National Department of Water Affairs and Forestry are in urgent need of restructuring.
- * There is recognition that the Department needs to play far more of a regulatory role in the sector, rather than that of an industry participant.
- * There is no clear legislative framework for the restructuring of the State's role in forestry.
- * Internationally there have been great strides forward in the understanding of the implications of sustainable resource management for forests.
- * The constitutional right to legislation which secures the conservation and sustainable development of resources is not provided for in relation to the forest sector.

The existing Forest Act was passed in 1984. It reflects the nature of the sector as it was at that time. No provision is made in it for addressing any of the matters referred to in the above list. It is also drafted in an inaccessible style which rural communities involved in forestry would never be able to make sense of.

The National Forests Bill before Cabinet represents a complete revision of the law affecting the forests sector, based on the policy development process referred to above. Currently, the Forest Act, 1984, deals with both forestry and the nation-wide control of veld and forest fires. This has been a source of confusion which accounts in part for the failure of the fire management provisions in the current Act. Retaining the two aspects in one Bill will also give rise to constitutional procedural problems in passing the legislation, as fire fighting is also a provincial and local government competence. The result is that two Bills are to be tabled, the National Forests Bill and the National Veld and Forest Fire Bill. This memorandum deals only with the former. A more detailed summary of the relevant provision of the Bill follows.

PREAMBLE

This identifies the conditions which give rise to the need for new legislation. These are mentioned above.

CHAPTER 1: INTRODUCTORY PROVISIONS

The purposes of the Act are set out. They are—

- * to promote the sustainable management and development of forests for the benefit of all;
- * to create the conditions necessary to restructure forestry in State forests;
- * to provide special measures for the protection of certain forests and trees;
- * to promote the sustainable use of forests for environmental, economic, educational, recreational, cultural and spiritual purposes;
- * to promote community forestry;
- * to promote greater participation in all aspects of forestry and the forest products industry by persons disadvantaged by unfair discrimination.

CHAPTER 2: SUSTAINABLE FOREST MANAGEMENT

This Chapter deals with sustainable forest management and is divided into two Parts.

Part 1

The Bill is intended to promote progressive and sustainable development of forests and forest resources. To that end principles are laid down in terms of which policies must be developed and official decisions taken in all matters affecting forests. This is in respect of all decision making by all officials irrespective of the laws they administer, as long as such policies and decisions have an impact on forests.

This Part also empowers the Minister to determine criteria, indicators and standards for sustainable forest management. He or she is given wide powers in this respect, including the power to decide whether these are to apply nationally, regionally or to particular forests or forest types. All action by the Minister in terms of this Chapter must be taken on the advice of a Committee for Sustainable Forest Management created by Chapter 6 of the Bill. This is dealt with below.

Part 2

The Bill provides for the Minister to undertake or commission research. He or she must also monitor the state of forest management in the country and report on it to the public. The Minister must report to Parliament on the state of forests at least every three years.

CHAPTER 3: SPECIAL MEASURES TO PROTECT FORESTS AND TREES

Natural forests are a national heritage. The prevention of their depletion and degradation is of great importance. Chapter 3 deals with this in various ways.

Part 1

Criminal sanctions are imposed on the destruction of trees in any natural forest. The prohibition is not an absolute one and the Bill provides for licensing of the destruction of such trees in exceptional circumstances.

Part 2

The existing Act makes provision for the declaration of state forests or parts of them as nature reserves or wilderness areas. However, these provisions have been completely replaced and revised in the Bill to bring the process in line with developments in international law and practice. There are also provisions to ensure greater coordination with other governmental agencies involved in protected natural environments and their administration.

This Part also allows for the Minister to expropriate land for its declaration as one or other of the areas mentioned. These include types of protected areas other than nature reserves and wilderness areas which are recognised in international law or practice. He or she may also agree with a private owner to declare such an area on private land.

Part 3

This part allows for the protection of particular trees which may not have adequate protection in terms of other legislation. Where the Minister thinks that protection is required he or she may take emergency steps as provided for in this Part. There is again a prohibition against destruction of such trees subject to a power given to the Minister to license such destruction. Provision is made for the registration of the protection against the title deeds of the land on which the trees stand in order to ensure that subsequent owners are aware of the status of such trees.

Part 4

Deforestation is hostile to sustainable forest management unless considerations of land use necessitate it. Consequently the Minister is given power to intervene in cases where there is deforestation or threatened deforestation. He or she may take steps to rehabilitate deforested or degraded areas and if such areas are on private land, may enter into a rehabilitation agreement with the owner. Wide powers are given in this respect including the giving of financial assistance for the rehabilitation. Persons or institutions may apply to have forests, trees or species protected under this Chapter.

CHAPTER 4: USE OF FORESTS

This Chapter addresses a number of the problems identified in the introductory section of this memorandum. It does so in various ways.

Part 1

This Part deals with public access to State forests for recreation, education, culture and spiritual fulfillment. Owners of State forests include any person controlling a State forest in terms of a contract, will or law. This would include a lessee. Owners of State forests must set aside areas of public access subject to rules regulating the access. These rules are drawn up by the owner who will have knowledge of the local situation. The rules may limit access with regard to fire hazard, commercial operations in a forest and so on. Access to private forests is also dealt with, but on the basis of purely voluntary grants of access by willing owners.

Part 2

The right to resources in State forests and the duty to manage them are vested in the National Government by this Part. However, this is subject to the scheme of the legislation which allows for those rights and duties to be transferred in accordance with current government policy. This is also subject to rights protected in terms of current land reform legislation and rights of reasonable access to State forests by the public.

Transfer of the State's rights and duties in relation to State forests can then be effected in a number of ways. An activity could be permitted by way of a licence. This would be subject to the licensed activity being compatible with sustainable forest management. provision is also made for the leasing of State forests for commercial and other purposes. Existing agreements with the South African Forestry Company Limited are accommodated under this Part. Provision is also made for the regulation of the sale of timber and other forest products from State forests.

Part 3

This Part seeks to empower communities in forestry by providing for agreements between them and the Minister for the development and management of their own forests, either alone or jointly with the State or other partners. Detailed provisions are enacted for the content of such agreements, the manner in which they are concluded, procedures for dealing with conflicting interests and the rendering of financial assistance to aspirant community foresters. The Bill places responsibilities on the State to facilitate the process.

CHAPTER 5: INSTITUTIONS

Part 1

A National Forests Advisory Council is established by the Bill. Its function is to advise the Minister on all aspects of forestry in the Republic. As a statutory body all its functions, its constitution, staffing and other matters are laid down. The Council is required to establish a permanent Committee for Sustainable Forest Management. It must advise the Minister and the Department on the formulation of the criteria, indicators and standards for sustainable forest management referred to in Chapter 2. A further permanent committee is the Committee on Forest Access. It must advise the Minister on the regulation of the public access to forests provided for in the Bill. Funding for the Council is from money appropriated by Parliament.

Part 2

A National Forest Recreation and Access Trust is created and replaces the National Hiking Way Fund of the existing Act. The Minister is the sole trustee of the Trust. The present Act provides for a National Hiking Way Board and a National Hiking Way System. These are now disbanded in view of the fact that the system has fallen into disuse as a centrally managed system. The object of the Trust is “to promote access to and the use of forests for recreation, education, culture and spiritual fulfillment”. The Minister is given wide powers in the administration of the Trust, and may seek the advice of the Committee on Forest Access on any matter. Funding for the Trust is made up of money presently standing to the credit of the National Hiking Way Fund and money appropriated by Parliament.

Part 3

Disputes may arise in the implementation of the Bill, eg under the provisions regulating access and those dealing with community forestry. This Part requires the Minister either to form a panel of facilitators, mediators and arbitrators for dispute resolution or to recognise an existing panel which has been appointed by the Minister of Land Affairs. They are not permanent employees but are paid for each appointment to resolve a dispute.

CHAPTER 6: ADMINISTRATION OF THE ACT

This Chapter deals with the administrative aspects of the Bill

Part 1

The Minister is given general power to develop policy for the sustainable management of all the forests of the country. Delegation of powers and duties are also dealt with. The Minister is also given power to make regulations. If it is in the public interest he or she may expropriate land or reserve state land for forestry. The regulations may include provisions to control the quality of timber and to enforce standards of forest hygiene.

Part 2

The Director-General may delegate the exercise of any of his or her powers under this Act and the performance of any of his or her duties in terms of this Act.

CHAPTER 7: OFFENCES AND PENALTIES

The Bill creates a great number of offences and seeks to give the law teeth to enable sustainable forest management to take root and develop.

Part 1

Categories of offences are created and penalties are laid down. Community service as an alternative to imprisonment is provided for in certain cases. Courts are empowered to impose compensatory fines. An incentive is given to persons who provide information leading to arrest and conviction of offenders in that a court may order that they be paid part of the fine.

Part 2

Each Chapter of the Bill creates a range of offences and these are set out in this Part.

CHAPTER 8: ENFORCEMENT

Forest officers are essential for the enforcement of the Bill. They provide the necessary policing of its administration. A forest officer has all the powers of a policeman in relation to offences under the Bill including entry, search, seizure and arrest.

CHAPTER 9: GENERAL AND TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS

This Chapter deals with transitional provisions to facilitate the transition to a new order in forestry.
