All these documents are ultimately intended to give effect to section 6 of the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996.

6. Policy Statement

This policy describes details of the NNRs compliance to relevant requirements of section 4 of the Use of Official Languages Act, 2012 (Act No. 12 of 2012) .

6.1 Nature of the NNR

The National Nuclear Regulator (NNR) is a public entity which is established and governed in terms of Section 3 of the National Nuclear Regulator Act, (Act No 47 of 1999) to provide for the protection of persons, property and the environment against nuclear damage through the establishment of safety standards and regulatory practices.

6.2 In terms of Section 7 of the NNR Act, the functions of the regulator are outlined as follows;

- (1) The Regulator may, subject to this Act, for the purpose of achieving its objects—
- (a) grant or amend nuclear authorisations;

(j) produce and submit to the Minister an annual public report on the health and safety related to workers, the public and the environment associated with all sites including, but not limited to, the prescribed contents.

(2) The Minister must table in Parliament the annual public report submitted to him or her in terms of subsection (1)(j) within 14 days after it is so submitted if Parliament is then in ordinary session or, if Parliament is not then in ordinary session, within 14 days after the commencement of its next ordinary session.

(3) The functions of the Regulator must be performed by the Chief Executive Officer, as directed by the board, except where otherwise specified in this Act.

The NNR recognises this policy as part of a process towards multilingualism. While the NNR is in favour of encouraging linguistic diversity, it must be noted that this is not its core business, and financial constraints will mean that it will have to find a balance between the language preferences and needs of its target audiences (internally and externally).

6.3 Official languages of the NNR

South Africa is a multilingual country with approximately 25 different languages spoken, of which 11 have been granted official status in terms of Section 6 of the Constitution (Act No. 108 of 1996), on the grounds that their usage includes 98% of the total population. The official languages are: isiNdebele, isiXhosa, isiZulu and isiSwati (referred to as the Nguni language group); Sesotho, Sepedi and Setswana (referred to as the Sotho languages group); Tshivenda, Xitsonga, English and Afrikaans.

Due to the global nature of nuclear safety and security regulation, and since English is the primary business language used internationally and in the South African Parliament, the NNR, selects English as one of the four (4) official languages used by the NNR. Based on the preferences of the local public it serves, the NNR also adopts isiXhosa, isiZulu and Afrikaans as its official languages for purposes of this policy.

The NNR Promotion of Access to Information Manual has been translated into all four (4) official languages.

In respect of indigenous knowledge systems conferences and workshops arranged by the NNR, simultaneous interpreting services are generally beyond the NNR's budget. Speakers are therefore encouraged to give an executive summary in English and their main address in their language of choice, or vice versa.

Members of the public and international counterparts whose language of choice is South African Sign Language or another language that is not one of the selected official languages will be accommodated as far as possible on an ad hoc basis. Requests for translations into and out of these languages will be sent to the National Language Service.
