2.2.1 Definitions

In this Notice unless the context indicates otherwise –

“baseflow” means sustained low flow in rivers during dry or fair-weather conditions, potentially including contributions from delayed interflow and groundwater discharge, but not solely reliant on groundwater;

“Ecological Water Requirements” means the necessary flow patterns (magnitude, timing, and duration) and water quality to maintain a riverine ecosystem. This term encompasses both quantity and quality considerations;

“Groundwater Resource Unit” means the smallest groundwater delineation unit based on similar hydrogeologic characteristics, demarcated for management purposes;

“groundwater contribution to Basic Human Needs” means the groundwater component considered in calculating Basic Human Needs supply for individuals living beyond 500 meters from a perennial river, meeting a daily water demand of 25 l/p/d;

“groundwater contribution to Ecological Water Requirements” means the groundwater contribution to Ecological Water Requirements determined using a baseflow separation technique with monthly flow data. This data is adjusted to match Target Ecological Categories for all river nodes and priority estuaries, considering both incremental and cumulative downstream flow;

“recharge” means the addition of water to the zone of saturation facilitated by precipitation percolation and surface water infiltration;

“the Act” means the National Water Act, 1998 (Act No. 36 of 1998).

“groundwater contribution to Ecological Water Requirements – Igalelo lamanzi angaphantsi komhlaba kwiimfuno zamanzi kwiindawo zokuphilisana” uthetha igalelo lamanzi angaphantsi komhlaba kwiimfuno zamanzi kwiindawo zokuphilisana eziqingqwa ngokuthi kusetyenziswe iqhinga lokwahlula amanzi ahamba kancinci neenkukacha zokuhamba kwamanzi ngenyanga. Ezi nkukacha ziyalungelelaniswa khonukuze zihambelane namabakala angqaliweyo eendawo zokuphilisana kuzo zonke iindibano zemilambo nemiwonyo yongxamiseko, apha kungqalwa ukuhamba kwamanzi ngendlela eyandayo neziphindaphindayo;

“recharge - Vuselela” uthetha ukongezwa kwamanzi kumda owomileyo obangelwa nga manzi alahleka ngokunyuka komphunga nangokufunxwa kwawo ngumhlaba;

“the Act - UMthetho” uthetha uMthetho waManzi weSizwe, ka1998 (uMthetho No. 36 ka1998).
